ABSTRACT

The objective of this research is to study and analyze the law on protection of LGBT. In order to prepare the law Research methodology is a qualitative research. Consisting of documentary research In-depth interviews Participation in Design - Joint Design and Public Hearing.

The research found that LGBT people are considered to have the same status as dignity as men and women. Protected under international law and international law to equalize marriage rights. As for Thailand, there is a law that guarantees marriage rights only for males and females. Therefore contrary to the principles of human rights and the Constitution of the Kingdom of Thailand The results of the research have been answered as the prototype law to certify and protect the marriage rights of LGBT people. Which has a legal structure consisting of marriage registration forms Relationship between spouses Property between spouses Nullity of marriage registration Adoption, inheritance, and limitation.

The research suggests that the original law be proposed to the Legislature for approval of the principle. Distributed to LGBT Through organizations related to the protection of human rights And to present to the Human Rights Commission to push for a model law to have a concrete mechanism for the protection of rights and liberties of LGBT.
